Dear Sir:

I am sure by this time you have put me on your list as being a very unreliable person. The truth is that I have been hoping each day we would be able to climax matters in regards to organizing the Baseball League.

I am afraid matters will not get ironed out satisfactory this season, at least not within the next few weeks. My intentions, however, are the same as they were the beginning of the year. I will contact you soon with some definite program. I am very sorry I have kept the matter open on your files without any final word one way or the other, but I am sure we will eventually get things straightened out.

Thanking you very much for your interest and co-operation.

Very truly yours,
